

ECNS - ECONOMICS

ECNS 201 Principles of Microeconomics. 3 Credits            Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring            Introduces the analytical tools of economists as they pertain to microeconomic theory and applications. This course emphasizes price theory, production theory, theory of economic organizations, and factor markets.            Lecture Hours 3            Department: NAS/PS/SOCL	ECNS 450 Econ of Global Development. 3 Credits            Term Typically Offered: Fall            Prerequisite(s): ECNS 201 and ECNS 202.            3cr. Examines the reasons for the amazing increase in human flourishing and material prosperity over the last 200 years. It is, of necessity, comparative in nature and considers the experience under central planning as well as under more laissez-faire property rules, and those systems that lie somewhere in between. Also examined are attempts in the twentieth and twenty-first centuries to orchestrate economic growth from without. The central emphasis is upon the rule structures and form of organization necessary for human flourishing.            Lecture Hours 3            Department: NAS/PS/SOCL
ECNS 202 Principles of Macroeconomics. 3 Credits            Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, Summer            Introduces the analytical tools of economists as they pertain to macroeconomic theory and applications. This course emphasizes the behavior of markets in the context of a national economy. Introduces theories of national income and employment, economic growth and stabilization theory, money and banking, and international economics.            Lecture Hours 3            Department: NAS/PS/SOCL	ECNS 456 Law and Economics. 3 Credits            Term Typically Offered: Spring            Prerequisite(s): ECNS 201.            3cr. Focuses on the economic analysis of the law. Topics include introduction to legal institutions and legal analysis; application of economic concepts to the law of property, contracts, and torts; criminal and constitutional law; economic efficiency of common law; and public choice perspective on the evolution of the law.            Lecture Hours 3            Department: NAS/PS/SOCL
ECNS 294 Seminar/Workshop. 1-3 Credits            Department: NAS/PS/SOCL	ECNS 457 Economics of Organizations. 3 Credits            Prerequisite(s): ECNS 201 and ECNS 202.            3cr. Applies microeconomic, contract and agency theories to understanding the structure and scope of organizations. Examines incentive structures, issues in accountability, responsibility and productivity measurements, and ownership structures of business.            Lecture Hours 3            Department: NAS/PS/SOCL
ECNS 300 Intermediate Microeconomics. 3 Credits            Term Typically Offered: Fall            Prerequisite(s): ECNS 201 and ECNS 202.            3cr. Covers price determination and resource allocation under competitive and noncompetitive market structures. Includes theories of demand, production, and income distribution.            Lecture Hours 3            Department: NAS/PS/SOCL	ECNS 490 Undergraduate Research. 3 Credits            Prerequisite(s): Consent of instructor.            3cr. (3 other/wk) Combines statistical and econometric techniques with economic and financial theories to conduct rigorous research projects in the areas of economics and finance. The project is similar to a thesis and is the sole factor used to determine the course grade.            Department: NAS/PS/SOCL
ECNS 302 Intermediate Macroeconomics. 3 Credits            Term Typically Offered: Spring            Prerequisite(s): ECNS 201 and ECNS 202.            3cr. Considers the determinants of aggregate levels of employment, output, and income of an economy.            Lecture Hours 3            Department: NAS/PS/SOCL	ECNS 492 Independent Study. 1-3 Credits            Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, Summer            Prerequisite(s): Consent of instructor.            V1-3cr. (1-3 other/wk) Provides outstanding junior and senior students an opportunity to explore material not covered by regular Economics courses. Students must complete a Request for Independent Study form and have it approved by CBAPC.            Department: NAS/PS/SOCL
ECNS 313 Money and Banking. 3 Credits            Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring            Prerequisite(s): ECNS 201 and ECNS 202.            3cr. Covers the mechanics of financial markets, the impact of fiscal and monetary policies, banking and financial institutions and instruments used by business and government, the relationships between interest rates, security prices, risk, exchange rates and world financial markets.            Lecture Hours 3            Department: NAS/PS/SOCL	ECNS 494 Seminar/Workshop. 1-3 Credits            Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, Summer            Prerequisite(s): Consent of instructor.            V1-3cr. (1-3 other/wk) Provides advanced students an opportunity to intensively investigate topics pertinent to the field of Economics.            Department: NAS/PS/SOCL
ECNS 314 International Economics. 3 Credits            Prerequisite(s): ECNS 201 and ECNS 202.            3cr. Considers classical and modern theories of international trade with applications to selected international economic problems.            Lecture Hours 3            Department: NAS/PS/SOCL	ECNS 498 Internship/Cooperative Educ. 1-3 Credits            Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, Summer            Prerequisite(s): Consent of instructor.            V1-3cr. (1-3 other/wk) Provides outstanding junior and senior students on-site observational opportunities.            Department: NAS/PS/SOCL
ECNS 403 Introduction to Econometrics. 3 Credits            Term Typically Offered: Spring            Prerequisite(s): ECNS 201 and ECNS 202.            3cr. Covers forecasting techniques used in business; assembly, interpretation and use of economic data; analysis of business conditions; construction of firm and industry sales forecasts.            Lecture Hours 3            Department: NAS/PS/SOCL	